prepared by Commissioner Harlan, and the unanimous expression of the body. The case, popularly known as the "com-mutation rate case." has been before the on more than a year.

Aside from affecting directly more than 500,000 commuters in and near New York, the principles enunciated through the opinion are of far-reaching importance, as they immediately concern railroads and commuters in every center of population in the country,

What is regarded as the most important holding of the commission, from the viewpoint of the railroads, is that it takes full jurisdiction over all commutation rates and assumes, under existing law, the power to regulate those rates precisely as it regulates straight passenger fares and freight rates. The respondent railroads in this case denied the commission's authority to assume such power, contending that, as commutation fares were far lower than straight passenger fares, which were conceded to be reasonable, and that, as all commuters were treated with absolute equality, the railroads' right to adjust publicans and Democrats would force commutation rates without interference adoption tomorrow by the Senate of the could not be questioned.

Ellis took up rowing early, and at the age of 17 entered a so-called boys' race at Crowwell on the Hudson. He rowed want Cornwall-on-the-Hudson. He rowed many single races at this age and won almost

There were five Ward brothers, including Ellis, who, with A. T. Raymond, formed an invincible sextet. It was late in the 60's when that memorable race with Harvard occurred. The latter's crack crew had trained all winter on the rowing machines for the international race in England, and in the spring had met and defeated every American erew, with the exception of the Ward 359 brothers. Harvard wrote to the latter asking them if they would race. The Wards had no shell, and had not sat in a boat that year, but they replied that if Harvard would furnish them with a shell and oars they would row it, to which Harvard agreed. With nine days to get ready and an old boat the brothers prepared for the race. The day of the race came and the crews duly started, Harvard, the Wards and St. Johns crew In the first 10 strokes Richards of Harvard broke an oar. ### SILK WITH BLOUSE OF CHIFFON GOOD DISHES FOR THE SUMMER

Skirt made in three pieces, with side panels

SKIRTS made of wool or of silk that are worn with blouses of chiffon in matching color make smart and attractive gowns. This skirt shows checked silk in black and white, while the blouse is of black chiffon over white lace. The cuffs match the skirt and there are pipings of black that give distinction and character. The yoke is made of dotted net. The contrast is excellent and the gown altogether a most attractive one. The skirt is made in three pieces with anels at the sides and the trimming of buttons is extremely fashionable.

The blouse, in this instance, is finished with a fancy shaped girdle, but the girdle can be made round and simply draped if found more becoming.

The same model could be used for one material throughout and in various ways. The entire gown made of foulard or other silk would be very pretty. The skirt and the blouse of striped silk with the girdle, cuffs and panels of plain colored satin would be handsome.

If the plain over blouse is not liked, the sleeves could be left loose, as shown in the back view, and neck and sleeve edges beaded. Beads can be applied over any braiding design and the work is very simple, while the effect is satisfactory. Treated in this way, the girdle could be left round and made either of the material or of black satin and the panels could be of black in place of the checked silk, if liked. The skirt can be finished at the high waist line or at the natural one, as preferred. The lace lining for the blouse is cut exactly like the outside and the yoke is attached under the neck edge.

For a woman of medium size the blouse will require 11/2 yards of material 27 or 36 inches wide or one yard 44, with 1/2 yard 18 for the yoke and 1/2 yard 27 for the girdle and cuffs; for the skirt will be needed 61/4 yards 27, five yards 36 or 3% yards 44 inches wide.

A pattern of the blouse (6976), sizes 34 not look attractive is that too coarse to 40 inches bust, or of the skirt (6891), thread is used for the work. that investigation the refered board was referred to and some questions were asked as to the "expense account. Mr. Zappone explained at that time (March, 1910,) that the money had been expended for "laboratory supplies, the maintenance of the hygienic table and for traveling expenses." The latter item, however, did not amount to much probably $500 a year for each member

At that time the question of the effect of the referee board's decision on and Mr. Fitzgerald thanked their hoats enzoate of soda was raised. Solicitor stated practically that the referee board was the superior of the pure food board.

"As it is a debatable question as to the use of benzoate of soda, why should not the matter be taken to the courts for settlement and for investigation?"

"The law does not authorize it unless referee board, 'the highest scientific authority in the government, has pro-nounced benzoate of soda harmless, there is nothing to take to the court."

In the former investigations, however there was no inquiry as to details o expenditures, and the unanimous report NEW YORK STATE of that committee was that the work of both the pure food board and the referee board "is useful in enabling the secretary of agriculture to avail himself of the best expert opinion in rendering his ment of the food and drugs act."

That committee found no fault with the department's expenditures save in 450. Considering a $1,470,056 increase the matter of printing and for the erection of the department building. Former Ruler Prepares to March on Capital While Internal Affairs Are in Unsatisfactory State

PENSION FORFEITED

(Special to the Monitor)

TEHERAN-Affairs in this country are at the present moment in anything but a satisfactory condition. Lawlessness has again broken out on the roads used by caravans for trade purposes, in addition to which news has arrived of the landing of former Shah Muhammed Ali in the neighborhood of Asterabad.

It will be recalled that the regent, Nasr-ul-Mulk, arrived in this country from England in January and took steps to bring about such changes as would result in the establishment of a more efficient government; indeed, he exressed his unwillingness to take office mless the existing state of affairs was hanged. This resulted in the formation of a new ministry in March. Affairs, however, did not develop in a satisfactory manner, and this, it will be remem bered, was followed by the sudden de parture of the premier in the middle of last month. His return later on did not result in any definite improvement in the affairs of the government, and the sbinformation that former Shah Moham med Ali has landed in Persia does no tend to improve the situation. The for mer Shah has proceeded to Asterabad accompanied by a band of followers, the exact number of whom is not known.

According to the protocol of 1909, the Russian government undertook to vent any intrigues by the former Shah. and it was stipulated at the same time, that in the event of his endeavorin to make arrangements to return to Persia should forfeit his pension. It is said that the Russian government was in-Muhammed Ali, and it was pointed ut that his pension should, conseently be forfeited.

IN THE REALMS OF MUSIC

A MERICAN theories of administrative efficiency were better lived up to when Gastav Mahler's successor in the New York Philharmonic conductorship was sought abroad than they would have been if the able concertmaster, Theodore Spiering, had been promoted to his place, Mr. Spiering proved himself equal to the task of taking the last concerts of the Philharmonic season through to a proud issue, but he could not be seriously considered when the question of a new director of the orchestra came up. For Mr. Spiering is a violinist, he is by profession the leader of the principal group of strings in an orchestra; and though he can conduct and conduct well, he is not to be regarded by a highly schooled American musical public that is choosing for itself a symphonic interpreter as an ligible candidate.

With Mr. Spiering at the head of things the Philharmonic Society might ontinue to give some worthy concerts, but it would not enter on a new season with any particular acclaim. So Josef Stransky, a man who has made an aggressive name in Germany, is called to battle the Philharmonic Society into favor with New Yorkers. And Mr. Stransky goes into action with a lieutenant who will presumably support his tactics with enthusiasm. He will have at the concertmaster's desk Henry P. Schmitt, in artist who has had a full share in the Philharmonic ups and downs of re-cent years. Mr. Stransky, in his pro-visional scheme of work for 1911-12, of ourse assigns his concertmaster a solo "The Girl of the Golden West" last sea

MISSIONARY WORKERS BUSY ON PROVIDENCE ORIENT' EXPOSITION

PROVIDENCE, R. I.-Active committee work is now under way in preparation for the missionary exhibition "The Orient in Providence," which is to be patterned after "The World in Boston." The exposition is to be held in this city from Sept. 21 to Oct. 7. The city churches have been arranged into groups so that different sections of the work may be handled by various groups.

While the name of the exposition implies that it is a "Providence" affair churches from all over the state are to participate in it. Work is now under way to enroll 2000 stewards to take costume parts in the exposition. Scenes from China, Japan, Korea, Alaska and others of the American Indian will be

Advertising Is an Economic Force

When the expense of attendance at this meeting of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America is considered, it is instantly seen that our visitors are not actuated in coming to Boston by an unimportant motive. Indeed, it is altogether probable that we, and perhaps even they, do not fully appreciate the importance of the reasons which underlie this great gathering.

- Advertising has attained the position of a great economic force. Whatever courses of action succeed in lessening the distances which separate men are beneficial. Advertising certainly does that. Whatever contributes to the ease with which one's legitimate demand may be met by another's supply, is advantageous. Advertising assuredly does that. Whatever adds to the individual's fund of useful knowledge increases his value to himself and to the community. Advertising without doubt greatly increases the average man's intelligence in commercial directions, increasing his value as a member of the industrial community.
- In the complexity of modern life, the springs of action which influence men are so closely related and so wonderfully interwoven that one cannot outline with definiteness just the degree to which any one form of human activity influences mankind's growth toward improved conditions. Yet it is possible to say that advertising, when used properly for right purposes, is a tremendous factor in increasing the happiness, the comfort and the pleasure of man.

To the Business Men

AND

Women of Boston:

- Advertising is the most accessible means of influencing men now available to the business world, for through its operation commercial information may be distributed almost to every person who can read—certainly to every person who will read. The printed word is nearly omnipresent. But newspaper advertising offers the quickest method of disseminating commercial information. Daily, almost hourly, it may be used to acquaint the world with the business man's message to his fellows.
- That the unusual advantages of newspaper advertising are widely recognized is shown by the important place it is awarded on the program for the coming week. Yet those who are newspaper advertisers, when compared with those who are not, form a ludicrously small company in the great army of industry.
- In Boston there is available an unusually complete newspaper field. There are daily newspapers enough, and with such differing characteristics, that there is ready to the business man's hand a weapon exactly suited to his need. The Boston business men and women have not yet realized what can be done by newspaper advertising. Many have discovered it, and are mounting to positions of commanding influence in the commercial world. But where there is one who has learned what an aid newspaper advertising may be made, there are hundreds who are blind to this tremendous fact.
- If they are alert to the significance of this week's great gathering, they will become advertisers—daily newspaper users—for by no other method can so great a number of people be reached in so short a time at so low a cost.
- Among Boston daily newspapers The Christian Science Monitor stands forth with the highest standards of efficiency—a clean, constructive agency for the forwarding of legitimate business concerns.

LOOK FOR NAVY YARD PROTEST

WASHINGTON-In the interest o economy Secretary Meyer is contemplating a policy which will further curtail work done in the navy yards. It has been found that many articles, such as ship fittings, deadlights, hammocks, flags, paints, small boats, anchor chains, rope and furniture can be advantageously purchased from private manufacturers. A naval board is looking into the matter. Another formidable protest from charge of a large delegation from Massanavy yard workers is expected to follow if an affirmative decision is reached.

THE WEATHER

UNITED STATES WEATHER BUREAU PREDICTIONS FOR BOSTON AND VI-CINITY: Fair tonight: Thesday CINITY: Fair tonight; Tuesday unsettled. probably fair; moderate variable

WASHINGTON—The U. S. weather bureau predicts weather today as follows for New England: Fair in southern, unsettled in northern portion tonight and Tuesday.

A long area of high pressure along the Atlantic coast is producing pleasant weather in the eastern sections. A well-defined disturbance central over lowa is causing cloudy weather with local showers between the Rocky mountains and the Mississippiriver. The greatest amount of rainfall reported was 3.18 inches from Wichita, Kan. This disturbance will probably drift eastward and pass out the St. Lawrence valley Tuesday afternoon or night. There has been a slight rise in remperature in the central and eastern districts.

Conditions favor for this vicinity fair weather, followed on Tuesday by increasing cloudiness and probably local showers by Tuesday afternoon or night.

GREAT WESTERN'S SMALL INCREASES

NEW YORK -- The Chicago Great Western's income account for 11 months ended May 31, and preliminary figures for June indicate small increases for the fiscal year. The road had the same conditions to meet as did the other roads operating in 89% this territory west and south of the Great lakes, and that a substantial part of the small increase in gross was car ried to net bespeaks the efficiency of the present management.

For 11 months it is $509,000 ahead in gross compared with last year's 11 gross compared with last year's 11 e1% months' record of $11,071,703, an in-$97,231, a decrease of $31,000.

For the full year it will report gross $12.800,000. Expenses will about 74 per cent of this, or $9,420,000. Total income with "other income" estimated at $112,000 will amount to about $3,492,000 and deducting $2.545,000 from this as requirement for interest on the road's indebtedness and for taxes, there will be about $947,000 as surplus available for dividends. This figure is equiva lent to 2.31 per cent on the new $41,021, 400 preferred outstanding, which is nonumulative but entitled to a maximum disbursement of 4 per cent before any payment is made to common stockholders.

DIVIDENDS

The Detroit & Cleveland Navigation company declared the usual semi-an nual dividend of 4 per cent payable Aug. 15.

The directors of the Boston Elevated Railway Company have declared the regılar semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent payable Aug. 15 to stockholders of ecord Aug. 4.

Mechanics & Farmers' Bank of Albany celebrated its one hundredth anniversary Saturday by declaring a dividend of 100 per cent and by giving each employee a check equal to six months' salary.

CANADA RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION OF MUCH MAGNITUDE

Considerable Work Projected for Dominion—Completion 1000's of Transcontinental Line Delayed for Year

NEW YORK-Active railway construction is projected for the Dominion and for Saskatchewan particularly in present fiscal year. In Saskatchewan over 1000 miles will be laid; last year, this province led with 476 miles. Canadian Northern will construct 330 miles in the province, Grand Trunk Pacific 342, and Canadian Pacific 350. In adition 1350 miles of new grading will be done.

Completion of Grank Trunk Pacific and Grand Trunk from ocean to ocean, ac-cording to President Hays, who recently completed a six-weeks' tour of inspection, will be reached in 1914, a year later than the estimate made early in 1910. In certain sections good progress had been made, while in others, owing to rough country and scarity of labor, construction has been slow.

Good progress has been made throug! the clay belt of northern Ontario. The main section is completed a considerable distance east and west of Cochrane, a divisional point, and the present terminus of the Temiskaming railway. On both sides there is good grazing and farming

From Winnipeg to Edmonton over 90 per cent of territory on both sides is ex-cellent wheat land, while the remaining is adapted to grazing. The present wheat belt and as yet unused fertile land of western Canada, extends about 200 miles west of Edmonton in Alberta, and is respect the situation is simply Am Ag Chem........ 591/2 591/2 591/2 its opening will serve, in time, to make of that town the distributing center of

The company in the year ended Juna 30 earned its dividend requirements of 10 per cent on the $27,000,000 stock. The first income account published was for year ended June 30, 1910, when the company had gross of $9,848,770 and earned 14.8 per cent on then outstanding capital of $18,000,000. For the year just ended charges, through sale of two issues of securities, were increased approximately $350,000. Dividend requirements last year were $1,562,872, while this year's disbursements at 10 per cent. on $27,000,000 stock required $2,700,000. From 1903 up to and including the year ended June 30, 1910, the Texas Company had paid dividends amounting to 91/2 per cent in cash, requiring $6,951,872. lowest rate was 6 per cent in 1904 and the highest 15 per cent in 1907. In addition two stock dividends, one in 1908 and one last year, have been declared, totaling $10,100,000 in securities. Negotiations for purchase of the Pear-son holdings are said to be in progress and estimates of cost to the Texas Company have ranged from $12,000,000 to $25,000,000. The company, to put through such a deal, would very likely have to do some new financing. An offer of stock might be made or bonds sold. There is $23,000,000 stock authorized, but not issued, of which $8,000,000 is needed to care for conversion of bonds, and there are $5,000,000 available for acquisitions

The plant and equipment are very comelete and the area of business is constantly being extended. On the Jersey shore opposite New York, the Texas Company owns a $750,000 plant which is regarded as one of its most promising

Mexico's Land Question

In the latter years of his incumbency of the presidential office Porfirio Diaz was often advised by thoughtful observers of the situation, Americans as well as Mexicans, to take steps toward a reformation of the land system of the républic. There is little doubt that he was impressed with the necessity of taking measures of some kind that would result in the opening of the great estates or haciendas to the people. But he procrastinated. His excuse for delay was that the times were not ripe for the great change that would transform the peons into land proprietors. Through the irony of events, Senor Madero, a great land-owner, became leader of the revolutionary movement whose appeal to popular favor in Mexico was based upon the extirpation

Senor Madero is to be the revolutionary candidate for the presidency. There is hardly a doubt of his election. He has somehow won over to his side the leading hacendados. It is asserted that these, the landed gentry of Mexico, are subscribing liberally toward the expenses of his campaign. They have controlled Mexican political affairs since the restoration of the republic after Maximilian. From their ranks Senors Juaraz and Diaz chose their cabinet officers almost exclusively. They have been dominant in the national Congress and in the state governments. The interesting question arises: With a friend, one of their own number, in the presidency, is it probable that the land reforms demanded by the people in general

Mexico's greatest problem at present is the creation of a responsible citizenship. This can be accomplished by the gradual surrender of the aristocracy to liberal opinions and liberal methods. The masses of the people must be schooled to self-government. It lies with Senor Madero and his class to determine whether the republic shall from this time progress, slowly perhaps but steadily, toward the establishment of stable democratic institutions or its history be punctuated with reaction and revolution. Comprehensive, broadminded statesmanship, of the kind that places patriotism before personality, is very much needed at this time by our neighbor to

Linking North and South America

WHILE not a great deal has been said of late about the intercontinental railway, known generally as the Pan-American railway project, South American countries are actively at work making the undertaking an accomplished fact. Whether it will prove profitable to have rail connection between cities like Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires and Santiago and New York, time alone can say. Not a few expert railroad men have doubted whether through-passenger travel will ever be a large factor in the traffic should there be uninterrupted rail service. That no one company will manage the system seems probable. But, on the other hand, there is no valid reason why each of the Pan-American nations concerned could not perfect its own lines to such a degree that intercontinental railroading would solve its own problems, because there would virtually be nothing to prevent continuous travel, just as in Europe a traveler can begin with France, for instance, and end the journey in Siberia.

Among Latin-American countries now doing much to further project of intercontinental travel, Chile undoubtedly holds first rank. At the farther end of what would constitute the line the nation is pursuing a railroad policy which each year adds many miles to the existing systems. At the beginning of 1911 no less than nine new lines were under construction. Rail intercourse with Argentina is constantly improving. Since 1851, when the first road of fifty miles was laid down, the Chilean railroads have increased their mileage until now the various systems comprise about 4500 miles, with the government owning one half. With Chile pushing constantly northward, it will only remain for some of the other republics to continue their building operations, and the Panama Canal Zone should be reached before many years.

Mexico, already in possession of a number of satisfactory railroads, will undoubtedly enter upon construction on a more elaborate scale with internal peace assured. If the Central American nations can be induced to follow suit, Brazil already stands ready with several lines that might be partly utilized for the proposed through route. Passenger traffic may at no time become the most conspicnous feature of the business, but interchange of products between north and south will be greatly facilitated. Such railroad linking is bound to come, because more than ever Pan-America is now commercially interrelated.

THERE is something satisfying in the circumstance that enough water still flows over Niagara falls to make the barrel trip uncomfortable. Otherwise it might be taken oftener,

Forestry in Canada's Far North

CANADA's land possessions in the far north are of greater area than even its own people can readily grasp. Latterly the opening of mines and the construction of railways to serve them have compelled a nearer popular acquaintance with the vast territory lying beyond the present line of populous settlement. But even now there is little general comprehension of the great stretches lying between the coast of Hudson bay and the valley of the Mackenzie. The Dominion government, however, has been striving for some time past to obtain information which would enable it to talk with more certainty of the possibilities of that country. In line with this purpose was the recent work of exploration carried on by the forestry branch of the department of the

A report made in relation to this enterprise is now within reach. Its immediate object, of course, was to investigate forest conditions. The route of the proposed Hudson Bay railway was followed, and a district extending for about 235 miles was covered. No timber was found growing at any considerable distance back from the water. Not over 1 per cent of the territory explored grows merchantable timber.

In respect to the natural growth of timber throughout the territory the report is not all that could be expected, but the point is not so much what the land is doing now in the way of producing trees as what it can be made to do. Spruce, like all first-class timber, is of slow growth; but a hundred years is not long in the life of a nation, and, from all appearances, there is no reason why the far north of Canada a hundred years from now should not be covered with spruce. The Toronto Globe very properly points out that Norway, lying for the most part north of the latitude of Ft. Churchill, furnishes Great Britain with its pit prop and pulp wood supply. The fact is fully recognized in Canada, both by people and government, that the present forests will not long furnish a timber supply at the present rate of consumption, and that provision for the future must be made without delay. The nation has the boundless stretches of the northland at its disposal, to sow them or plant them as it pleases, and all that seems to be required is such a liberal annual appropriation as will permit the employment of expert foresters and the purchase of the necessary equipment and stock. If the enterprise succeeds, and there is no reason why it should not, it will mean the laying up of enormous wealth for future generations of Canadians.

Somebody may raise the point that it is hardly fair for Canadians to raise a campaign fund for the defeat of reciprocity when American congressmen and senators forfeited their vacation to pass

THE Pacific slope, even in territorial times, has never been partial to paper money. In the state of Washington today there is some dissatisfaction because eastern visitors are leaving paper in exchange for hard money. The Tacoma Tribune tells us that the influx of visitors from the country east of the Rockies has created a heavy demand for gold and silver coin in that city. Gold coin, it says, is a rarity in the eastern states, where it is very seldom seen in the ordinary transactions of business. When the tourists reach the coast and gold and silver are given in exchange for all things gold is retained, and, as a natural result,

Gold and

Paper in the

more paper money is being handled by the banks than ever before. It is recalled that during the civil war the paper money of the government was in very low repute in the Pacific West. Greenbacks were at one time quoted as low out there as 33 cents on the dollar. Despite the laws of Congress, making national bank bills legal tender for all debts, public or private, with the exception of duties on imports, the people of Washington, Oregon and California insisted upon payment in the precious metals. Under the law there were numerous cases in that country during the war period when advantage might have been taken of the legal tender act to pay debts with a depreciated currency, but it can be said to the honor of the people that few instances of dishonesty are recorded. The people were as insistent upon paying as on receiving coin.

Nearly all visitors to the West after the war, and during the period of financial rehabilitation throughout the rest of the country, brought back pleasant stories regarding the plentifulness of gold and silver money in California, Oregon and Washington. The "shinplaster" never got a foothold out there. It was long before the "nickel" was tolerated. The copper cent has not even to this day found a place in the affections of far westerners. It is a remarkable circumstance that the mere crossing of the Rocky mountains has always discovered to easterners a very wide difference of the popular point of view not only in relation to currency but in regard to its purchasing power.

Tacoma and Washington, like other places in the Pacific West, are finding compensation for the flooding of that section of the land with paper money in the fact that it means the invasion of people from the paper-money regions. It is realized that many of these people remain, and that most of them bring a "stake" that may easily be transformed into coin.

IF THERE is anything in a name, M. Level of France, who has set a new record for flight with a passenger, should be able to maintain a satisfactory balance.

New York's New Seaside Parks

Action just taken by the New York board of estimate, authorizing the beginning of proceedings for the laying out of two seaside parks, a project involving the expenditure for sites alone of over $2,500,000, is worthy of the country's first city. One of these parks is to occupy the Dreamland site on Coney Island, the other will have a tract of 250 acres at Rockaway beach. They are intended to be seaside resorts for the poor.

Next to the establishment of parks of this character, the most important thing is to provide for their accessibility. It is the understanding that the New York authorities are going to insist on the lowest possible rates between all parts of the greater city and the public beaches. Every interest in the community, great and small, is concerned in the comfort which the new parks will bring to the wageearners of the city and their families. It requires no extraordinary penetration to see that the recreation that will be made possible by the establishment and efficient management of these seaside resorts must have results that will eventually pay large dividends, moral and financial, to the municipality.

Boston is peculiarly happy in the accessibility of the seashore to all classes of people in the community. It is impossible to estimate the benefits that have accrued to it by reason of its 5-cent rides to the ocean's brink. Nobody who has ever taken the pains to watch the going and returning crowds, however, fails to be impressed by the transforming influence of these little excursions, an influence that manifests itself in lighter tread, brighter eyes, happier faces. No thoughtful lover of his kind, seeing the change, can refrain from expressing inwardly great gratitude that the sea air, the sea view, nature's great outdoors are thrown open to so many.

MINNEAPOLIS is now striving to enforce a "no-seat-no-fare" ordinance. Other cities have been through the experience, and they have found, as a rule, that people who are in a hurry, as most people are, will take the first car that comes along, whether it is not only has it been incumbent upon them to provide necessary revenues under their own method of assessment, but they have been forced to meet the demands of the state. There have been efforts along the line of obtaining permission from the states to organize independent single tax districts, but these have failed for various

ADVOCATES of the Henry George system of taxation have long been wishing and hoping for an opportunity of trying it out on a large scale, that the world might thereby be quickly and thoroughly convinced of its practicability. It is frankly confessed by the doubters that the system has nowhere yet had a fair trial. In cases where communities have adopted it they have been compelled to comply with the general taxation laws; reasons, mainly constitutional.

Will Missouri Try the Single Tax?

It is now proposed in Missouri, however, to amend the state constitution so that henceforth all revenues, local as well as state, shall be raised through the imposition of a tax on real property only. There is a strong public sentiment in favor of this radical change—a sentiment that is deeply rooted in discontent arising from the recognized and widely acknowledged inequality and injustice of the present taxing system. The feeling that the tax on general property, sometimes called the personal property tax, is neither fairly nor honestly levied, is not confined to any particular section of the country. There is, in fact, a nationally prevalent conviction that this tax lies at the root of the most menacing social and political evils. Nowhere among intelligent people in these days is there any doubt as to the need of reform in this particular. The conscientious property owner and taxpayer submits to it, complies with its requirements, under protest. It is impossible for him to defend a system that places a premium upon deceit and dishonesty. The system, so generally disliked and so often proved inadequate as a revenue producer, has been tolerated through the years because of the seeming impossibility of finding a better one. Henry George came forward a generation ago with his land-tax solution of the problem, but, although he won thousands of followers, and although his adherents have been growing in number and in earnestness ever since, the tremendous conservative influence in this and other countries has prevented it from advancing very far beyond the theoretical stage. There has been for over thirty years, and there is today, a fear among conservatives that if the Henry George method should be adopted the rights of property, somehow or other, would be destroyed, whereas the advocates of the single tax system believe that these rights would be strengthened. However this may be, the fact remains that some of the clearest and ablest political economists in the world have unlimited faith in the ability of the single-tax system to produce an ample revenue by equitable means. They look to it, moreover, to bring about economic conditions of the most salutary character, to work out social problems that are now perplexing humanity, to make for constructive as well as cleaner methods in politics. Missouri is to decide before long whether it shall become the testing ground for this important economic innovation, and the decision will serve to show whether any great advance has recently been made by its advocates against the bulwarks of conservatism and prejudice that are always ready for the defense of old systems.

THE American ambassador to Mexico has reached Washington on timely leave of absence, since he may assist in making the new Mexican ambassador to the United States feel at home in the capital.

Two factors contribute to make Americanmanufactured goods and inventions known throughout countries adjoining the eastern Mediterranean. One is the continued presence of so many American educators and teachers of religion and the dispersion of their pupils throughout European Turkey, Asia Minor, Syria and Egypt. The other is the increasing emigration from the Levant to the United States and the transmission by those persons who settle in America of information which has a stimulating and informing effect on kindred and friends who remain at home. Robert College at Constantinople and the Syrian college at Beirut not only have trained leaders in political revolutions that have transformed Bulgaria, altered the balance of power in Turkey and given impetus to the Young Egypt movement, they also have sent far and wide youth who, for a season, have lived where all the devices and comforts of occidental invention and practical science were to be had. These students have seen electricity in all its applications to heating, lighting and transmission of power. Mechanisms of all kinds, common as air in the American kitchen, home and educational "plant" have brought to these students desires that they are eager to have satisfied as they set up their own homes.

Nor, as we have intimated, is this the only source of information that is contributing to the rising demand of the near east for the products of American factories. Greeks, Albanians, Armenians, Syrians and Copts, resident in the United States, not only send back their earnings. They tell of what they find in the new land, and urge its adoption by kindred and friends left at home. Were Americans as eager to engage in Levantine trade as their European rivals are they would have taken advantage of the opening of the region that has followed the new political regime in Turkey. The facts here mentioned favored them above all competitors, had they shown adequate enterprise. Advertising of their goods, costing them nothing, had been going on for years, and goes on still. Yet up to date comparatively little has been done to secure a share of the business that Levantine merchants may be eager to place in this country. Manufacturers who will route their goods properly, who will adjust their credit system to the traditions of the region, and who will establish permanent relations with reputable middlemen in Smyrna, Constantinople, and Alexandria, will apparently find no trouble in selling fabrics, machinery, agricultural implements, electrical and gas fixtures, dressed and paneled lumber and kitchen utensils. All the preliminary advertising has been attended to. What is wanted now is the "goods."

THOSE who believe Colonel Roosevelt is a candidate for President evidently assume that his determination not to talk is a phase of conservation of natural resources.

THE question of the correct pronunciation of Arkansas is again to the fore. It is as difficult to settle, apparently, as is the correct pronunciation of St. Louis
